

MUDD ASKS MILITARY ROAD TO ANNAPOLIS

Congressman Introduces Bill for $25,000 to Aid Maryland Construct Highway.

A military highway from Annapolis to Washington, designed as a strategic road to be used in event this nation goes to war, is proposed in a bill introduced in the House today by Congressman Sydney B. Mudd of Maryland.

The Mudd bill provides that the Federal Government shall aid the State of Maryland in building the military road, the estimated Government contribution being $25,000.

Mr. Mudd's Views.
Congressman Mudd issued a statement in connection with the bill in which he says:

"I am convinced the time has come when the Federal Government should take a definite step in the direction of anticipating the future by building strategic highways wherever necessary for use by the armed forces of the country in defending it against a foreign enemy in case of invasion or threatened invasion.

"First of all, the National Capital, the heart of the nation, should be provided with every adequate means of proper defense, and to prevent a repetition of what occurred during the war of 1812, when British forces landed on the shores of the Chesapeake Bay and marched overland to Washington, where they burned the Capitol building and the White House.

A Strategic Center.
"State roads have been built from Baltimore to Annapolis and from Baltimore to Washington. There should be a road, equally as good, linking up Washington with Annapolis. In case of a threatened attack on Annapolis troops could be rushed with heavy guns over the State road from Baltimore to Annapolis, and at the same time, troops could be sent out from the National Capital to form a junction with them in defending Annapolis, and at the same time protecting the National Capital.

Lesson From Europe.
"The war in Europe has provided some most valuable object lessons. One of the most important of these is the value of strategic highways, which have been used in supplementing strategic railways, as facilities for the movement of troops, supplies and heavy guns.

"Military experts have testified that in strengthening the army for the national defense we should have a mobile army. The strategic highway contemplated in the measure will contribute wonderfully to the mobility of the forces that may be called upon to defend Washington."

SUFFRAGISTS WOULD LINE UP LEGISLATORS

Nation-Wide Campaign Planned to Strengthen Pending Amendment.

Members of the newly organized Congressional committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association are planning a far-reaching campaign to line up Congressmen in favor of the suffrage amendment pending before Congress. If these plans are carried out, every Congressional district in the country will be organized for suffrage so that there will be constant pressure from the women in these districts on the lawmakers here.

"Nothing is so effective with any member as a word from folks back home," says Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee, "and we propose to perfect organizations whereby each and every Congressman can be subjected to just this kind of pressure."

Associated with Mrs. Roessing on the Congressional committee are seven other women who will help in the task of organization and in carrying on the Congressional work here. Mrs. Antoinette Funk, of Illinois, and Miss Mary Garrett Hay, of New York, are vice chairmen. The other members are Mrs. Betty Ruffner Jacobs, of Alabama; Mrs. Celestine Grenfell, of Colorado; Mrs. T. T. Cotnam, of Arkansas; Mrs. C. S. McClure, of Michigan; and Miss Martha Norris, of Ohio.

It is planned to have a concert from 7:30 to 9 o'clock, when dancing will be in order until midnight, with a brief intermission for refreshments. The ballroom will be attractively decorated with a number of booths set around the hall, from which flowers and refreshments will be sold.

Major Edwards has announced that the drill team of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, has been invited to give an exhibition drill as a feature of the evening.

Newman Ends His Course With Trip Through Africa

Through Africa E. M. Newman last evening conducted the large audience at the Belasco in the concluding lecture of his course, "The History of the World in the Matter of Attendance, the most successful series the lecturer ever has conducted in his annual visits to Washington.

Previous to last evening, Mr. Newman had taken as his subjects the countries of South America.

In the travel talk of last evening the audience was guided through thousands of miles of the wildest country on the globe. From Mombasa he conducted his hearers through Zanzibar, German East Africa, Rhodesia, Transvaal, Zululana and the Orange river colonies.

He told of the previous slave traffic from the countries of the northern and of the continent, and explained the vast changes in the political geography that may be expected in Africa as a result of the war.

Elaborate pictures, as usual, were a feature, with particularly impressive views of Victoria Falls.

LITERACY TEST TO COME UP THIS WEEK

House to Consider Immigration Bill, Vetoes Twice—May Pass It Anyway.

The Burnett immigration bill, containing the literacy test which has been disapproved in veto messages by two Presidents, is scheduled for consideration in the House late this week.

Chairman Burnett, of the Committee on Immigration, is "counting noses" today, and believes the lower body will override the President's veto if the bill is again rejected at the White House.

A bill substantially the same as the pending measure passed in the closing months of President Taft's term. It was vetoed by Mr. Taft, who said he could not approve of the provision that an immigrant must be able to read his own or some other language before being admitted to American shores. The House failed by only a few votes to override the veto.

Bill Vetoes Again.
Early in President Wilson's term the bill was again passed by both houses and sent to the President. He vetoed it, and again the House failed by a narrow vote to override. It was believed that if the House had voted to override the Senate would have followed suit.

Chairman Burnett will ask a special rule to make the immigration bill privileged. He believes there should be no delay in putting through a measure for restricted immigration. The end of the European war, Mr. Burnett says, will be attended by an exodus from the debt-burdened countries of Europe.

Take Opposite View.
Opponents of the legislation, however, claim there is no danger of an invasion by European immigrants. They say the depopulated European countries will need every one to rehabilitate their home industries, and that immigration will be naturally limited after the war.

Passage of the Burnett bill is always attended by a bitter debate on the floor and it is probable that two days will be given to debate on the measure.
